

Mosaic crochet Wall Hanging

#Thule pattern by Tinna Hekl worked flat as a Wall Hanging

When working a mosaic crochet pattern flat, you will have beginning and ending tails at both sides of your work; making a wall hanging of this kind of small projects may be a good option for decorative purposes. The pattern I worked is the beautiful #Thule by @Tinna Hekl, whom I really thank for such a versatile and inspiring design.

In order to have a nice finished work you need to add an extra row of s.c. to make both sides more equal. I also added an extra row of slip stitches in a different color just to frame the pattern. At this point you may add more fringes to one side of the work (which will be the bottom of the wall hanging) to make it more decorative. Steam and block the work before fixing it around a support of your choice: it can be a stick, a branch from a tree or a paper cylinder.

- I made a paper cylinder with vinyl glue and recycled paper (shopper). This cylinder should be empty inside in order to pass through it the hanging cord: you can easily make one just wrapping recycled paper around a pencil and then fixing it with glue while wrapping a couple of rounds more just to get it more firm. Let the cylinder dry completely before the next step.

- To fix the work around the support, you need to work into the back side of the project in order to weave and sew each and every tail of it around your support; thread a needle with one tail and then sew it into the back side of every single stitch, passing the needle twice through the same loop

When doing this you should start from the center of your piece, and then work a few tail at each side (in order to get an even tensión) till you have all the tails sewed. Take care not to tighten too much the thread because you still want the stick to be visible from the frontside.

This is the meditative part of the work so just enjoy it!

Now you just need to make a chain of the desired length which you will pass through the cylinder and join to the beginning with a knot. Just slip the knot inside the cylinder in order to hide it.

Then Trim and shape the fringes on the bottom of your wallhanging or leave them uneven if you prefer. That's it. I hope you find this information useful. Ciao
